

Title	Dimensionality of Task Design as Measured by the Job Diagnostic Survey
Author	Randall B. Dunhan a, Ramon J. Aldag and Arthur P. Brief
Source	Academy of Management Journal
Pub Date	1977
Keywords
Abstract	Twenty, widely-varied samples of workers (n=5,945) responded to the core characteristics items from the Job Diagnostic Survey. Factor analyses identified two, three, four, and five-factor solutions for various samples. It was suggested that researchers and practitioners should examine the dimensionality tapped by this instrument for each sample.