Abstract	This report of the stock-taking exercise of the ILO's programme on measuring decent work was prepared by Ms Ana María García Femenía, an ILO evaluation consultant. The exercise, which was carried out from October 2013 to January 2014, was guided by the same principles as an independent evaluation and included a combination of desk research and interviews with ILO staff and constituents at ILO headquarters and in the field. It was undertaken concurrently with the final evaluation of the ILO/EC Project Measuring and Assessing Progress on Decent Work (2009-2013) and covers countries that were not included in that project's evaluation: i.e. Azerbaijan, Jordan, Kyrgyzstan, Moldova, Senegal and South Africa. Technical backstopping was provided by the Department for Multilateral Cooperation under the coordination of Ms Margaret Mottaz-Shilliday.
