

Title	Examining the Relationship Between Psychosocial Working Conditions, Physical Work Demands, and Leisure Time Physical Activity in Canada.
Author	Morassaei, Sara Smith, Peter M.
Source	Journal of Occupational & Environmental Medicine
Pub Date	2011
Keywords
Abstract	The article discusses the impact of leisure time physical activity (LTPA) on levels of skill discretion and decision latitude in Canada. It notes that women are affected more by skill discretion than men. It mentions that older employees are concerned more about job security than their younger counterparts.